Dear Colleagues:

We are pleased to invite you to join us for the upcoming May 10, 2014, 7:30 to 3:15 pm, Primary Care Psychiatry Foundation CME conference: Women Are from Venus: Psychiatric Disorders in Females Across the Lifespan held at the Marian University College of Osteopathic Medicine Auditorium, 3200 Cold Springs Road, Indianapolis, Indiana 46222-1997.

This is the first of two conferences focusing on gender as a differentiator in identification, diagnosis, treatment and referral of patients with psychiatric disorders. The study of the neurobiology of gender is in its infancy. For too long we have missed the diagnosis of ADHD and substance use disorders in women both in the mental health and the primary care setting. Eating disorders and trauma-related disorders appear more prevalent in women. They too, are easily missed in a primary care setting where visits are short and focused. There are, of course, unique aspects of disorders of mood and thought in women related to menses and childbirth.

Objectives: At the conclusion of this conference, participants should be able to identify, and diagnose females with mood, attention regulation, trauma, substance abuse, psychosis, and eating disorders.

Women come to the attention of mental health practitioners more openly and willingly than men. Focusing on gender as a differentiator is one way that we as clinicians can improve the early identification, diagnosis, treatment and referral of girls and women with psychiatric disorders.

Take this opportunity to register as an attendee for the May 10, 2014 Primary Care Psychiatry Foundation CME conference.

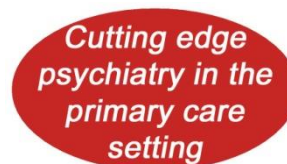

Sincerely,

Joshua Lowinsky, MD
